Eagleton off Demo ticket; successor not yet chosen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton withdrew as the Democratic vice presidential candidate Monday night, agreeing with George McGovern that the debate over his mental health was diverting attention from the real campaign issues.

McGovern announced the decision to a jammed, late evening news conference in the Capitol after conferring with the freshman Missouri senator for nearly two hours in private.

McGovern said he had not decided who he would choose to replace Eagleton, who caught McGovern by surprise and startled the nation six days ago with his revelation that he underwent psychiatric treatment in the 1960s, including electroshock therapy.

It was the first time in American history that a candidate on the national ticket of a major political party had stepped down after accepting the nomination.

Initial reaction from Democratic leaders around the nation showed they generally felt that Eagleton's withdrawal was in the best interests of the party. But many expressed personal sorrow that his candidacy had to end the way it did.

Eagleton, 42, had said up until Sunday that he would not give up the nomination unless McGovern asked him to, but both he and McGovern insisted that they jointly agreed he should withdraw. For his part, McGovern said he had not made a final decision until he conferred with Eagleton in a room off the Senate floor with a mutual friend, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., sitting in on the session.

"Sen. Eagleton and I agree that the paramount needs of the Democratic party in 1972 are unity and a full discussion of the real issues," the presidential candidate told a jam-packed news conference.

"Continued debate between those who oppose his candidacy and those who favor it will serve to further divide the party and the nation. Therefore, we have jointly agreed that the best course is for Sen. Eagleton to step aside."

McGovern, who was caught by surprise by Eagleton's revelation that he had been hospitalized three times from 1960 to 1966, had high praise for Eagleton. "Few men and women in American politics have been under as much pressure as Sen. Eagleton has been this past week. And he has held up well. I am proud."

Added McGovern: "This decision is the most heart rendering and difficult decision I have ever had to make in my life."

McGovern said Eagleton's health was not a factor in the decision to seek a new running mate.

In apparent reference to his failure to inform McGovern of his medical problems, Eagleton told reporters: "My conscience is clear. My spirits are high."

Although McGovern had scheduled a news conference at his Washington home for 9 p.m. EDT today, he indicated he might not have a successor to announce at that time.

As it became more evident that Eagleton would leave the ticket, speculation on a replacement swept through the Capitol. Most of the names mentioned were the same ones that were heard when McGovern was making his initial choice last month in Miami Beach.

They included Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, former Peace Corps director Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, and a newcomer to the list, former Democratic National Committee Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

McGovern and Eagleton held their news conference in the Old Senate Caucus Room where John F. Kennedy announced for the presidency 12 years ago.

McGovern showed no emotion. After McGovern made the announcement, Eagleton faced the battery of cameras and microphones.

"As Sen. McGovern has stated, he and I are jointly in agreement that I should withdraw as a Democratic candidate for vice president... I will not divide the Democratic party, which already has too many divisions."

Area party leaders feel chances better

BY SKIP TAGGART
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — W.C.G. (Bud) Peterson, chairman of the Monroe County Democratic Party, said he believes the Democrats have a better chance of winning in November without Senator Thomas Eagleton on the ticket.

Contacted after Eagleton surrendered his candidacy as vice-presidential running mate to Sen. George McGovern Monday night, Peterson expressed whole-hearted faith in the Democratic ticket to defeat President Nixon.

"The chances were good with Mr. Eagleton on the ticket," said Peterson. "They will probably get better now."

He said, "It's never easy to defeat an incumbent President. The only time I can ever remember it happening is with President Hoover. I'd say our chances to defeat Nixon are very good. In fact, excellent."

Peterson spoke highly of Sen. Eagleton's political success, pointing out his strength in Missouri and his zealotry within the party ranks. "I'm not sure Mr. Eagleton would not have made a good Vice President or even President."

"I think many people were becoming polarized from all the publicity he was receiving. It seems that quite a few people are just not ready to accept this type of thing yet."

Peterson doesn't feel the chances of President Nixon will be enhanced by the change in the Democratic ticket.

"Six months ago you could walk down Main Street and just about everyone you talked to was tired of the way Nixon has been handling things. I don't think the mere fact there was a difference of opinion within the (Democratic) party will affect that feeling. It doesn't mean the people will have any less faith in the Democrats at all."

"I believe we stand an excellent chance of winning in November," he said.

The Democratic leader in Pike County, Ernest Gastmeyer, was a bit more tight-lipped about Eagleton resigning from the ticket Monday night.

"I'd rather not comment about it just yet," he said. Gastmeyer indicated he would wait until McGovern chooses another running mate before he would draw any conclusions about the possible success or failure of the party come November.

"I will say his (Eagleton's) image has definitely been hurt," remarked Gastmeyer.

Nation's Democrats voice sorrow, but little surprise

By United Press International

Democratic state leaders expressed sorrow and little surprise Monday night at Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's withdrawal as a vice presidential candidate, but indicated they generally felt it was in the best interests of the party.

"I think he is a fine man who got caught in a tough situation," said Colorado Chairman Bill Leavel. "I think he would have done a good job."

Oklahoma Gov. David Hall praised Eagleton for "a show of raw courage in a time of frustration and turmoil, a selfless act of putting country and the good of his party ahead of his own personal ambitions."

Sen. George S. McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, "now can focus his attention on the burning issues of domestic inflation, unemployment and other failures of the national administration," Hall said. "This makes it possible for McGovern to debate the President on the real issues, not charges and countercharges made by the people."

Indiana State Chairman Gordon St. Angelo said "I expected it" and that it was "too bad it had to come to this." But he said he thought Eagleton's departure "would help Indiana and probably help many other places."

But in Eagleton's home state of Missouri, State Chairman Delton Houtchins said the senator got "a raw deal," that he "is a very capable young man and would have carried a load that McGovern could not have." He said he would campaign now only for state and local candidates, saying the McGovern forces "can count Missouri out as far as I'm concerned this fall."

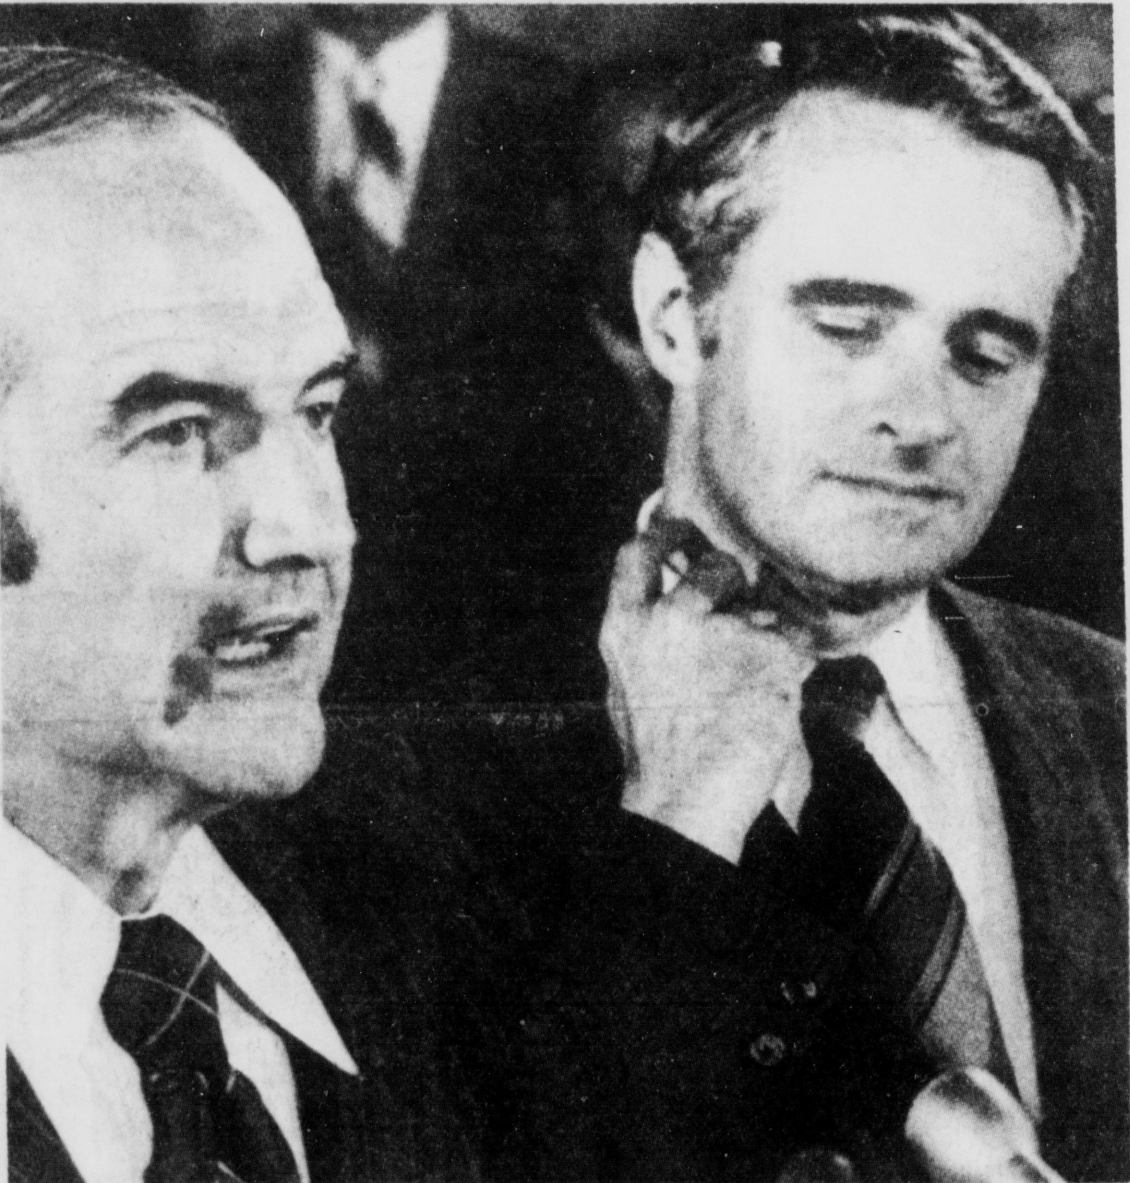

And in Eau Claire, Wis., Democratic National Committeeman Donald Peterson said he was sorry to see Eagleton step down because he was confident the senator would have made "a great vice president."

But San Diego Attorney Eugene Theriaue summed up the reaction of many, saying: "McGovern's fight is an uphill battle and Eagleton was like a brake. Any drag on the campaign was more than McGovern could afford to carry at this point."

Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton said he also thought Eagleton made the right decision.

In Massachusetts, State Democratic Leader Jerome Grossman echoed the hope expressed by McGovern and Eagleton that "now we will be able to focus on issues confronting America and not be diverted into further discussions of personalities."

Heading for Algeria

Skyjackers get richest haul

BOSTON (UPI)—Five hijackers accompanied by children commandeered a Delta Air Lines jet with 101 persons aboard in Florida Monday, collected a record $1 million in ransom and then headed for Algeria after a refueling stop in Boston.

The hijackers, three men and two women, were identified as Detroit residents who lived together in an East Side home for the past year and often talked to neighbors of going to Algeria. A sign "Fly Delta's Big Jet," decorated one wall of the home.

The other Delta passengers were released in Miami after Delta collected the $1 million—largest ever in the 18 ransom hijackings in the United States—and delivered it to the hijackers.

FBI agents in Boston said they learned that the Algerian government would refuse to permit the plane to land but it was not known if the hijackers knew it. In a previous hijacking, Algeria permitted the plane to land but returned the money taken by the hijackers.

The FBI in Detroit identified the Delta hijackers as Melvin and Jean McNair, Larry Burgess, Joyce Tillerson and Harry Singleton. Agents said the McNairs' child and the Tillerson woman's daughter, Kenya, accompanied them. Passengers getting off the hijacked plane and Delta in Miami said there were three children with the hijackers, who were described as very calm.

Officials said the 3,300 mile trans-Atlantic flight would take between eight and 10 hours. An international navigator was put aboard the DC8, four-engine jet.

The Delta crew was comprised of four men and three women.

Lottery juggle gives more small prizes

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Lottery Bureau — by juggling numbers and prize money—will pay more to the lowest prize winner but less to middle prize winners and millionaire contestants.

The announcement came Monday from Revenue Secretary Robert Kane, who said the lottery would return from its six-week flood interruption Aug. 23 in Hellerstown, with tickets going on sale Aug. 10.

Kane said the post-flood lottery will have a completely new prize structure designed to make it easier for ticket holders to know if they are winners.

Under the new system, assuming 123456 is the $50,000 winning number — X23456 and 12345X win $2,000, XX3456 and 1234XX win $200 and XXX456 and 123XXX win $40.

Under the old system, X23456 won $4,000, 12345X won $1,000, XX3456 won $400, X2345X won $100 and XXX456, XX3455 and XX3457 won $40.

Kane said that assuming ticket sales continue to average 6.5 million per drawing, the lottery will pay out an additional $76,050 a week.

The net effect, he said, will be $187,200 to 4,680 additional $40 winners but a decrease of $111,150 to second and third prize winners, even though there are 59 more.

Broken down to the number of winners for every ticket sold, there will be one $50,000 winner,

New look in lottery tickets

18 $2,000 winners, 180 $200 winners and 1,800 $40 winners.

Kane said the $4,000 and $1,000 prizes and the $400 and $100 prizes were combined to form $2,000 and $200 prizes. He said this was done to equalize the odds.

The money gained through this juggling enabled the Bureau to create the additional 4,680 $40 prizes and 59 $200 prizes.

Kane also said that under the new system, there will be an increase of 64,935 persons qualifying for the "Sudden Millionaire" drawing by matching the final digit on their ticket with the final digit on the winning number.

To make up for part of the additional prize money in the weekly drawing, the Lottery Bureau cut out the $145,800 it used to pay to 2,673 persons who made it into the "Sudden Millionaire" semifinals, but did not qualify for the finals.

The 10 "grand tier" prizes in the millionaire drawing remain the same but the other 290 finalists will get $600 each instead of $500 or $1,000, depending on their weekly tickets.

Kane said the rest of the additional weekly prize money is available because there is a pool of unclaimed prize money left over after each drawing.

Another change in the rules enables weekly prize winners to qualify for the millionaire drawing. Previously, this was forbidden.

The Lottery Bureau, according to Kane's estimate, suffered $500,000 in flood damage to tickets and machinery and $7.5 million in lost profits.

The last drawing was held July 12 in Beaver Falls.

Bremer case underway

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — With a jury quickly picked to hear his case, former Milwaukee busboy Arthur H. Bremer was identified Monday as the gunman who left Gov. George C. Wallace partially paralyzed in an attempt on his life May 15. As the trial on state charges against Bremer got off to a fast start, three witnesses identified the defendant, but three others failed.

Allies pound citadel

SAIGON — The allies pounded Quang Tri city and its Communist-held citadel with more than 20,000 rounds of artillery fire Monday in preparation for another assault by South Vietnamese troops. "We're going to throw so much artillery in there that we'll be able to walk right in without seeing a living soul," a U.S. adviser to the South Vietnamese marines said. The South Vietnamese have been trying to retake Quang Tri city, the country's northernmost provincial capital, since their counter-offensive began June 28.

McGovern on first plank

WASHINGTON — Sen. George S. McGovern announced a major legislative move Monday to carry out a key plank in his presidential campaign platform by cutting military spending immediately. The South Dakota Democrat said today he will offer an amendment to the Defense Department authorization bill which would reduce President Nixon's budget figure by $4 billion in the fiscal year which began July 1.

Volunteer army next year?

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said Monday the United States will have an all-volunteer army by next June 30. He said money previously spent in Indochina will pay for it. Laird and the Nixon administration had said previously they hoped to end the draft by next June, but this was the first time a firm date was announced.

British occupy barred areas

BELFAST — British troops and tanks bulldozed into Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic "no-go" areas Monday, occupying every stronghold of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA). They met little resistance. But three bombs later killed six persons and injured 30 in Claudy, a village 10 miles east of Londonderry. The IRA denied responsibility.

U.S. asks reversal of Ellsberg trial stay

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In a rare move that could lead to a special summer session, the Justice Department Monday asked the Supreme Court to overturn Justice William O. Douglas' stay of the Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo.

The court has not overturned a stay by one of its nine justices since June 18, 1953, when it voted 6 to 3 to vacate the execution—also granted by Douglas—of spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

The court is recessed until October and only Chief Justice Warren E. Burger was present when the government petition was filed by Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold. It will require a majority vote to decide the issue.

Burger directed Monday afternoon that the defendants file responses to the government's application by noon EDT Wednesday.

Douglas, as presiding justice of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which includes California, stayed the trial Saturday—just 48 hours before it was to begin before U.S. District Judge W. Mathew Byrne Jr. in Los Angeles.

Byrne excused the jury of eight women and four men Monday until Aug. 9, when he said he might be able to tell them when the trial would begin. Meantime, he warned them not to discuss the case nor expose themselves to news accounts of it.

Defense attorney Leonard Bouding said he was asking the Supreme Court for an opportunity to reply to Griswold's petition. And defense attorney Charles Nesson said that if Burger, an appointee of President Nixon, does convene the court in special session it would prove the case is "a political prosecution".

In a test of the government's power to control disclosure of secret documents, Ellsberg and Russo are charged with conspiracy, espionage and theft of government property in making public the top-secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in South Vietnam.

After hearing arguments in Yakima, Wash. on Friday, Douglas said the constitutional right to counsel "obviously involves the right to keep the confidences of the client from the ear of the government, which these days seeks to learn more and more of the affairs of men."

Sadat, Libyan leader meet as Israel sees war cooling

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat flew to Tobruk Monday for important talks with Libyan leader Muammar Khadafi, the Middle East News Agency said. An Israeli newspaper said Egypt's expulsion of Soviet military advisers had "considerably diminished" the chances for renewed war in the region.

The state-controlled press in both Libya and Egypt said the meeting between Sadat and Khadafi was historic, but emphasized different aspects of the talks.

Libyan newspapers said the meeting was called to deal with Khadafi's appeal for a merger of Egypt and Libya, a proposal he made five months ago to the day. At the time, Sadat said he wanted five months to consider the proposal.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said the two leaders would discuss "the current Arab situation" following Sadat's expulsion of 15,000 Soviet military advisers. The Egyptian paper said Sadat and Khadafi would discuss "means to strengthen efforts and mass Arab potential in support of the Arab's self-force in the confrontation of the Israeli aggression."

In Israel, the newspaper

Ma'ariv of Tel Aviv said Monday Sadat's expulsion of the Russian advisers reduced the danger of renewed hostilities in the Middle East, at least temporarily.

"The danger of war in the Middle East had considerably diminished, at least until January, 1973," Ma'ariv said, quoting "Israeli defense sources."

Nixon leads mourners

Ellender buried at home

HOUMA, La. (UPI)—Sen. Allen J. Ellender, who rose from backwood bayous and sugar cane fields to become dean of the U. S. Senate and third in succession to the White House, was buried Monday in the Louisiana Cajun country where he was born 81 years ago.

President Nixon, one of six presidents served by the 5-foot-4-inch Louisiana Democrat during his 36 years in the Senate, led the mourners.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern were also among the more than 100 government officials attending the funeral at St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church.

Ellender, who died last Thursday night of a heart attack at Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington, was buried in the family plot in Magnolia Cemetery.

"Sen. Ellender had a long and almost uniquely successful political life that shed his blessings upon millions of his

Gentlemen robbers get haul

NEW YORK (UPI)—Five gentlemanly robbers held up 21 persons at gunpoint Monday at the Park Plaza hotel, broke into safe deposit boxes and fled with an undetermined amount of cash and valuables.

The gunmen, sporting mustaches and plastic covers over their hands, handcuffed 12 men with cuffs they brought with them but did not shackle the women and told them they would not be hurt.

For robbers they were "the politest people I've ever seen," said Camille Parr, night head auditor.

She said she was in the cashier's office when one of the bandits, pointing a pistol at her, politely asked: "Would you please follow me?"

The robbers rounded up 18 employees, a guest, a cab driver and a delivery man and herded them into a small office while they punched out the locks of eight of the hotel's safe deposit boxes, police said.

Detective Inspector Jules Sachson said the operation lasted about an hour and the robbers fled in a tan Rambler station wagon with New Jersey license plates.

He said the men were selective about which boxes they broke into and for this reason "I would assume they knew where they were looking."

The robbery was similar to a safe deposit box robbery at New York's Hotel Pierre in January when more than $1 million in cash, jewels and other valuables were taken and 19 guests and employees held captive for an hour and a half.

fellow men," said Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans in the eulogy. "He saw national and international problems through the prism of the family experience. This accounted for his simplicity and candor."

"His convictions were well known and his decisions were consistent with his convictions," the archbishop said. "There was never any doubt about his loyalty to the country and his integrity in carrying out his duty to the Senate."

Thousands of mourners lined the streets in Houma, Ellender's hometown 60 miles southwest of New Orleans, whose walls were still hung with political posters showing the smiling face of the late senator and the words "Re-elect Ellender."

Convicted murderer kills guard, himself

NORFOLK, Mass. (UPI)—A convicted murderer shot and killed a guard and a civilian employee at Norfolk Prison Colony Monday during a "desperate" escape attempt, then killed himself when his bid for freedom was blocked.

Inmate Walter Elliott, 32, of Somerville also shot and apparently tried to kill his wife Katherine, who had smuggled two handguns in to him, but she survived and was in critical condition late in the day, authorities reported.

Elliott apparently shot his wife in the head and then took his own life, officials said. She was found by his side at the wire mesh and mattress barricade they erected in a dormitory-style cellblock about 70 yards from a rear gate.

Their bodies were found at 3:07 p.m. (EDT), about six hours after the escape attempt began. Guard James Souza, 29, of Fairhaven died in the first moments of the break and Alfred J. Baranowski, 54, of East Walpole, an instructor at the medium security prison, was wounded in the head and died shortly before 5 p.m.

Guard David Mackie, 30, of Norfolk was shot in the neck and jaw. He was in satisfactory condition at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Club ruled 'accommodation'

Irvis wins Moose fight

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The state Supreme Court, ruling on the controversial case involving House Speaker K. Leroy Irvis, ordered the Harrisburg Moose Lodge Monday to drop its ban against Negro guests.

The ruling was a victory for Irvis, D-Allegheny, and the state Human Relations Commission, after a four year legal fight that ended once in defeat in the U.S. Supreme Court.

However, the U.S. Supreme Court ruling was based on Irvis' bid to have the lodge's liquor license revoked.

The unanimous decision by the state court was based on a Human Relations Commission ruling which let the lodge keep its license but told it to serve Negro guests.

The Human Relations Commission had ruled that the lodge was a "public accommodation," because it regularly was rented for banquets.

However, the state Supreme Court overturned the lower courts rulings, and agreed that the lodge was a "public accommodation" and subject to state laws against discrimination.

In its ruling, the court said the lodge can discriminate when it sets up qualifications for membership. "Having gone beyond that point," the court said, "and by making its facilities available to non-members, it may not do so on a discriminatory basis in violation of the Human Relations Act."

UMW election process starts

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Union members from Alaska to Virginia today begin nominating possible successors to W.A. "Tony" Boyle and eight other top international officers of the United Mine Workers (UMW) in a prelude to a court-ordered December election.

Five candidates from the heart of the nation's soft coal belt have announced they will challenge Boyle for the $50,000 UMW presidency. Candidates for president, vice president and secretary-treasurer must be nominated by 50 of the union's estimated 1,300 locals before their names can be placed on the ballot.

Nominating meetings will also be held from Aug. 1 to Sept. 3 for three international tellers and three international auditors. Candidates for those positions must receive nominations from no fewer than 10 union locals.

U.S. District Judge William Bryant earlier nullified Boyle's 1970 re-election on grounds of voting irregularities and ordered a new election held Dec. 1-8. Union insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, Boyle's lone 1970 opponent, was assassinated with his wife and daughter at Clarksville, Pa., shortly after the election.

Boyle has also been convicted in another federal court of illegally channeling union funds into political campaigns, but that conviction was appealed.

'Mr. Europe' dies at 73

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Paul-Henri Spaak, a co-founder of the European Common Market and former prime minister of Belgium, died Monday. He was 73.

Known as "Mr. Europe" because of his pioneering effort to unify the continent, Spaak entered the hospital Sunday and died shortly after midnight.

today in his world championship chess match with American challenger Bobby Fischer.

Spassky, trailing Fischer in match points 5-3 after eight games, asked for postponement of the ninth game Sunday because of the cold.

Spassky's second, Nikolai Krogius, said the Russian was "improved" Monday and almost certainly would be back at the chess board today for the ninth game of the 24-game match.

Spassky, playing white, will have first move in the game scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. EDT today.

As challenger, Fischer must win 12.5 of the tournament's possible 24 match points,

600 British ships idled

LONDON (UPI)—The British Chamber of Shipping reported Monday that a nationwide walkout by longshoremen had idled between 500 and 600 ships. Flying squads of longshoremen descended on small ports that escaped the four-day-old strike and demanded work stoppages there.

Central food markets reported food prices beginning to soar as a result of the strike and there were more and more reports of food spoilages as strikers refused to touch shipments of fruit and vegetables from the Channel Islands to England.

Pageant rehearsal underway

HAWLEY — The Pageant to select Miss Pocono 1973 takes place in the Wallenpaupack Area High School Auditorium, Lake Wallenpaupack, Hawley, Friday and Saturday.

A local preliminary to the Miss Pennsylvania and Miss America Pageants, the Miss Pocono Pageant has a similar scholarship program, rewarding winners with educational grants, paid directly to colleges of their choice.

Miss Pocono 1973 will represent Scranton, Stroudsburg, Honesdale, Milford — all of the Counties of Wayne, Pike, Monroe and Lackawanna.

Now rehearsing under the direction of Robert Howell of the drama department of East Stroudsburg State College are Sue Ann Ballard, Hawley; Charlene Colon, Nesquehoning; Marie June Conklin, Effort; Rosemary Chromey, Durysa, Cynthia Louise Hannes, Hawley; Sally Ann Peters, Chinchilla; Janet Delorey, Moscow; Jamie Ann Elkins, Honesdale; Cynthia Greiner, Ephrata; Karen Irene Lord, Dallas; Josslyn Rindock, Lake Ariel; Jean Trivelpiece, Clark's Green and Cynthia Stephens, Honesdale. Judging will be on the basis of poise, personality, beauty, intelligence and talent.

Frank Blair of the NBC "Today" show will again be master of ceremonies.

Judging for the competition are Anthony Noto of New York, associate professor at Adelphi University; Janice Harvey, producer at WCAU-TV, Philadelphia; Peter Foltz, assistant professor of mathematics at Harrisburg Community College; Edward McMannes, director of student union at Gettysburg College and Betty Baum of Hershey, official state chaperone for Miss Pennsylvania.

Tickets are available from Mrs. Lucille Smith, Telephone 717-676-3631 or at the Box Office. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Safety campaign launched

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Transportation has launched Operation: Life, a two-pronged attack on traffic casualties over the Labor Day weekend.

Pennsylvania will become the first state in the nation to tabulate a "traffic casualty index" in the hope that such a tally will make motorists more aware of the increased dangers of holiday travel and thereby minimize it.

"We have prepared a series of hard-hitting public service messages which will be broadcast throughout the state in August urging motorists not to drive over Labor Day weekend," said PennDOT Secretary Jacob Kassab.

"The first prong of our campaign is to get people to give their car a holiday and make other plans for the weekend, hopefully, at or near home," he said.

"The second prong will be keeping them aware of the traffic casualty index over the weekend, thereby reminding them to stay off the roads, or for those driving, to do so carefully," Kassab stated.

Kassab added Col. Rocco P. Urella of the Pennsylvania State Police has agreed to have state police substations serve as data collecting bases across the Commonwealth for information used to compile the traffic casualty tolls.

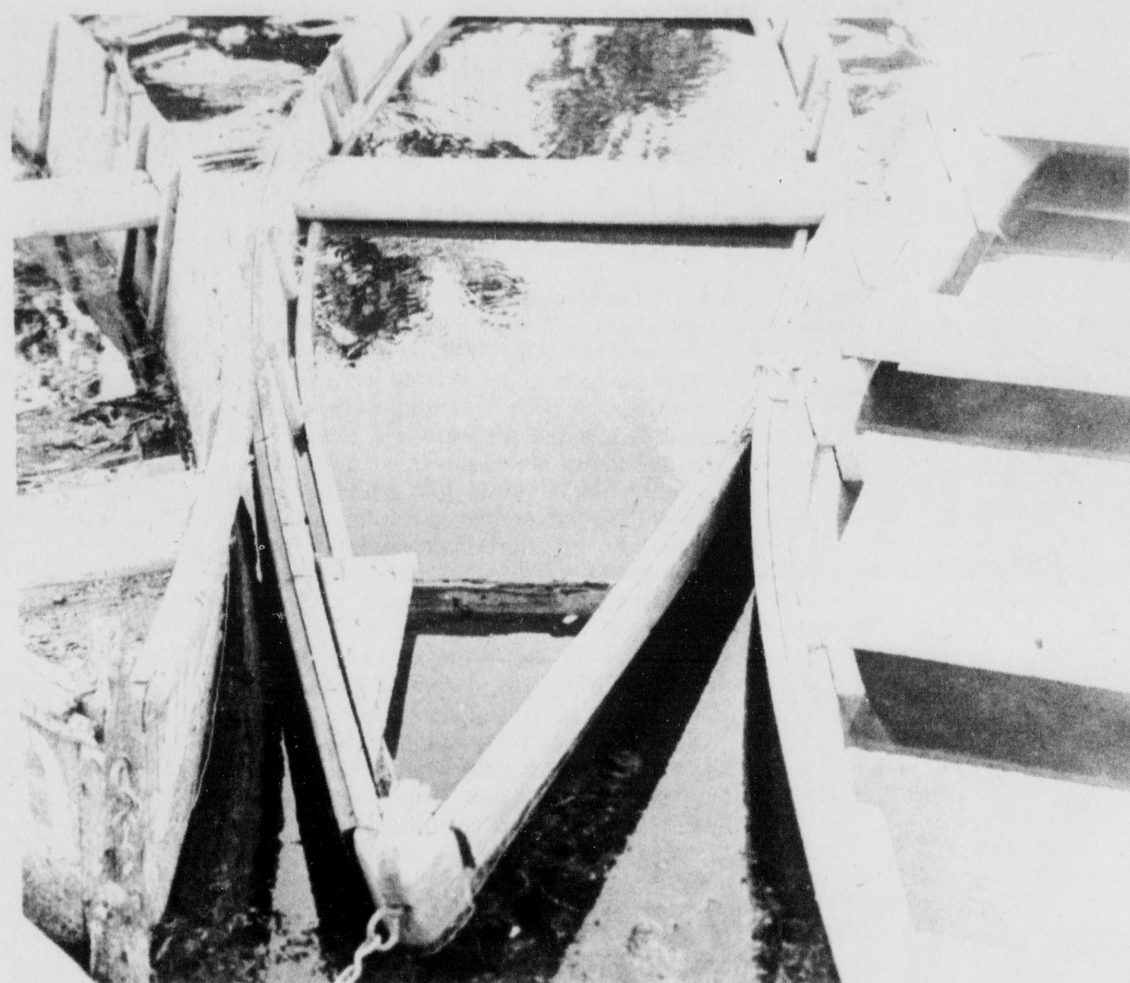

Concert scheduled

SAYLORSBURG — Brownsville Station are returning to do another concert at Saylor's Lake Pavilion, Route 115, Saylorsburg on August 6 at 8:30 p.m.

Brownsville Station plays rejuvenated rock and roll that has made crowds happy all over the country. In April they performed at the Puerto Rico Pop Festival.

The group consists of Cub Koda, Tony Driggins, Henry Welk, and Mike Luts. Their first single, "Rock With The Music," from their second album was released July 24.

Tickets are available in advance for the same price at Lehigh Valley ticket outlets.

Going nowhere

The nostalgic days when people spent a relaxing afternoon rowing gently around Saylor's Lake seem gone forever. The water-filled boat moored at Saylor's Lake is evidence that the once popular sport of rowing is now over.

'Gussasphalt' may fill all those potholes forever

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Transportation is currently conducting an experiment that could revolutionize highway paving throughout the nation.

"We are testing a paving material known as gussasphalt," said State Transportation Secretary Jacob Kassab. "According to all available reports, it should last twice as long as the asphalt materials now in use," he said.

"Gussasphalt, if it proves as successful here as it has in Europe, could help get Pennsylvania out of the potholes," Kassab stated.

"Over 1,500 miles of Germany's Autobahns are paved with this material. German highway officials report these heavily-traveled roads last an average of 15 years without resurfacing," said Kassab.

The principal advantages of gussasphalt is its long life, its ability to carry traffic as soon as it has cooled without any curing period, and its ability to be laid even in sub-freezing temperatures.

The reason gussasphalt lasts longer than conventional paving materials is that, when cooled, it is solid and contains virtually no trapped air.

Gussasphalt can be used for both new construction and for resurfacing existing roads. Its cost, though generally higher than other asphalt paving materials, is expected to be offset by its longer life.

The experimental paving is being done on a 1.5 mile section of Route 322 between Harrisburg and Hershey. Half of this section of four-lane highway will be paved with gussasphalt and the other half with ordinary asphalt. Since both pavements will be subject to the same traffic and weather conditions, a direct comparison can be made.

New conservationist assumes post in area

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Work Unit of the Soil Conservation Service announced that Lowell Edminster from Warren has assumed his new duties as district conservationist serving both Monroe and Carbon counties.

Edminster has a B.S. degree in agriculture education from Pennsylvania State University and has done graduate work at Penn State, Pitt, and Rutgers. He also holds a masters degree in biology from Edinboro State College. He was a recipient of the Kellogg Fellowship for Community Affairs Award at Rural Leadership Forum.

He was raised on a diversified farm and operated this farm through high school and college. He was a Vo-ag teacher for two years in New Jersey teaching mechanical drawing. He taught evening courses two years under the Manpower Training Act.

He also taught Health, Vo-Ag and Science in Crawford County (Meadeville, Pa.) for five years. He has worked with the Soil Conservation Service in Bradford, Sullivan, Tioga, Warren and Forest counties.

While working in Warren County, he was organizer and charter director of Conewango Improvement Association (a watershed association); active Unitarian Church member; SOAR Chairman for Cornplanter Boy Scout Council; and adviser to Kinzua Valley Conservation Rangers.

Native Pennsylvanians, both he and his wife, Judith come from Meadeville, (Crawford County). He and his wife and their four children will be residing in the Saylorsburg area.

It's a Safe Bet... You'll NEVER Run Out of Hot Water with

NEW AtlanticRichfield OIL POWERED Water Heater

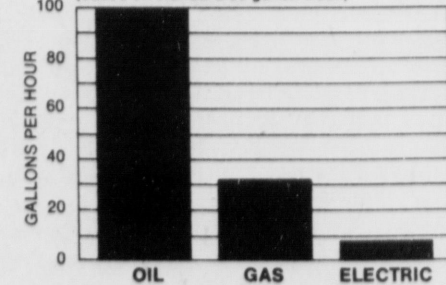

Here's Why

Fast Recovery Rate

Over 100 gallons per hour in 30 gallon boiler is 3 to 10 times faster than utilities type water heaters.

Comparative Performances of Water Heaters

(based on standard 30 gallon sizes)

A standard 30 gallon water heater will recover 100 gallons of hot water per hour when heated with oil, 30 gallons when heated with gas, and 10 gallons when heated with electricity.

Economy—Less than half the cost of electric water heating, less than gas, too.

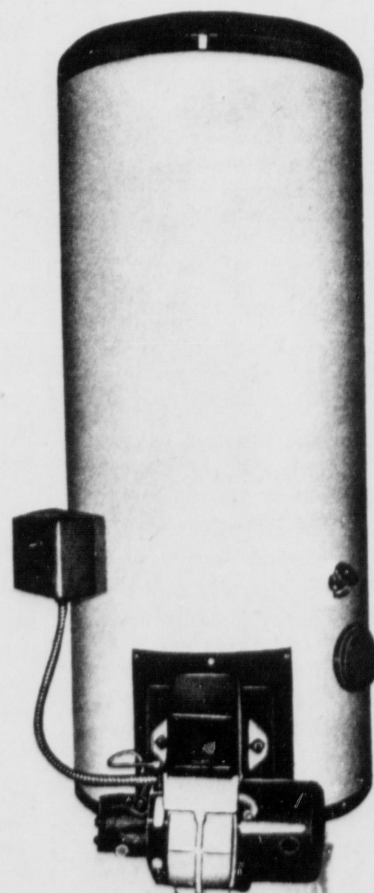

Long Tank Life—For every 20 F. stored water is increased, tank life is decreased by half.

This means... Electric and gas units requiring water temperatures as high as 180 F. severely reduce tank life.

The Atlantic Richfield unit's fast recovery rate permits low thermostat setting—extends tank life up to 4 times longer.

63 new jobs added

Employment rate climbs in Pike

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — The number of workers employed in Pike County manufacturing industries climbed 63 during the past year to a total average work force of 179, a State Department of Commerce industrial survey of the county shows.

On the other hand, the number of manufacturing plants in the county showed a decline — inching downward from 15 in 1970 to 14 last year.

Of the county's 179 employees, 130 were classified as production and related workers as compared with 130 such workers a year earlier. (Production workers include workers and foremen whose work is associated with the manufacturing operations of the establishment.)

Commander named for veterans council

TOBYHANNA — Joseph C. Wargo has been named commander of the Veterans Council at Tobyhanna Army Depot, succeeding Walter Lenko of Moosic, who retired from Federal service.

Wargo, employed as a packer at Tobyhanna, served as vice commander under Lenko and moved up to fill the commander's post when Lenko left, as stipulated in the council's bylaws.

The Veterans Council was formed in 1962 to promote various depot programs, conduct patriotic observances and assist veterans. Of the depot's approximately 3,400 employees, over 2,600 are veterans, with nearly 1,100 carrying 10 per cent or more disability with the Veterans Administration.

Employed at Tobyhanna since February 1966, Wargo is an Army veteran of World War II.

He serves as chairman of Boy Scout Troop 73, St. John the Baptist Church, Throop, is president of the Holy Name Society of St. John's Parish and a member of Raymond Henry American Legion Post 327, Olyphant.

Tragedy price of innocence

It is difficult to conceive of the extent of the tragedy that occurred a month and a half ago just 40 miles from Monroe County and less from Pike County.

Those residents of the Stroudsburgs who remember the 1955 flood have a pretty good idea, but as for the rest — well, in the words of Thomas Blair, associate professor at East Stroudsburg State College, "you have to see it to believe it."

To those who have never experienced a flood, it seems a simple enough matter: wait for the water to go down, then clean up.

It isn't that simple. We have had reports of a family going back to their house in hard-hit Kingston and cleaning out the muck. A Herculean job in the literal sense, that was only the beginning. For this family, it was the easiest chore. Once the muck left by the Susquehanna was cleaned out, walls began to crumble. Floors began to warp, the house itself twisted out of alignment on its foundation as it dried, paint peeled off and the foundation itself began to crumble in spots.

After their back- and heart-breaking labors, the family had to abandon their home and start anew. They, and thousands like them, are not going to start anew anywhere near any body of water bigger than a tiny rill, and they may be suspicious of even that.

It is this sort of crushing blow that is creating a mood of intense depression and hostility that has local officials and physicians deeply concerned. They realize that, given the feelings of desperation that quickly followed on the heels of courage and determination, the Wilkes-Barre area may never recover from the blow dealt it by Tropical Storm Agnes.

The whole thing never would have happened, of course, if people had not built homes and cities on vulnerable flood plains. But that had been done since antiquity, and until a few years ago, when research into flooding problems began in earnest, no one really thought much about it.

That won't be done again. But such knowledge is too late for Wilkes-Barre, Kingston, Plymouth and a host of other towns and cities up and down the Susquehanna.

Those unfortunate people, it seems, are paying a very dear price for their innocence.

Have fun, kids!

It seems paradoxical, but children in big cities, which supposedly have "everything", fare worse when it comes to having things to do in the summertime than children in more rural areas.

In the Stroudsburgs, for example, there are enough activities for youngsters to keep them busy from sunup to sundown, six days a week. (There has to be one day of rest!)

The same is true for youngsters in other areas of the county. And the thanks has to go to the local recreation boards, where such exist, and to concerned and interested adults everywhere.

There are, of course, the playgrounds. And within those general playground activities are a host of planned programs to give the kids organized activity with a purpose and a sense of fun.

Just out of curiosity, The Record last week decided to send a reporter out to compile a few of those activities. What he came back with was a list so extensive and comprehensive that we couldn't possibly catalogue all those activities in one place.

Accordingly, we will break that list down into smaller fragments and present them periodically throughout the remainder of the summer so children and their parents will know that, yes indeed, there is something to do around here!

Incidentally, that list of activities does much to support the theory behind recreation boards. From what we have seen, that is one type of official unit that really earns its keep. We would like to see more in the area, and wholeheartedly support those in existence in their efforts to provide fun and games for the area's youngsters.

Dikes against dissent

The Pennsylvania Story

Denenberg's battles

Mason Denenberg

HARRISBURG — When Gov. Milton J. Shapp goes on speaking engagements he has been known to start his speech by saying, "You all know me. I'm the man who brought Herb Denenberg to Harrisburg."

In some quarters the governor might not be far from wrong!

But in about a year-and-a-half Dr. Herbert S. Denenberg (PhD) has become the most famous, of infamous, Insurance Commissioner in the history of Pennsylvania.

The indefatigable Dr. Denenberg has started what seems to be a one-man war on behalf of the insurance-buying public.

Gov. Shapp has called 1972 the "Year of the Consumer" in Pennsylvania, and Dr. Denenberg is certainly doing his part to see that the consumer gets a fair shake when it comes to buying insurance.

He has led the fight for No-Fault automobile insurance; he has put a stop to many requested insurance company rate hikes and he has published "Shoppers' Guides" for automobile and life insurance.

Now comes a new "Shoppers' Guide" from the shop of Dr. Denenberg.

Turning light

This one, turning the light on the medical profession, is entitled "Shoppers' Guide to Surgery."

The Denenberg guide is not an attack on the medical profession, but it does explain in lay terms many of the rights of a patient, rights which until now had never been made clear.

For example, many people feel that it is improper to have outside consultations with other doctors concerning their impending surgery.

Dr. Denenberg corrects this misconception when he states that it is in the best interest of the patient to have several competent opinions concerning his condition.

This, according to the Commissioner, can result in between 20 and 60 per cent of all operations being avoided.

Neither should the patient be afraid to inquire concerning the surgeon's fee. Any responsible physician is more than willing to discuss fees. Anyway, Phase II wage and price guidelines require that a list of fees be available for inspection.

Determining the competency of the surgeon is one of the most difficult tasks facing the patient.

For this, Commissioner Denenberg offers this guideline: To insure the competency of the surgeon check to see if he is a member of the Fellows of the American College of Surgeons and has been certified by one of the American Specialty Boards.

Strict licensing

This will ensure that the surgeon has met strict licensing requirements and is up to date on newer surgical techniques.

The Guide also suggest that patients ask the surgeon to explain clearly what he proposes doing, what alternative therapy might be used and why he prefers surgery.

Dr. Denenberg says further that a patient should use resources such as pamphlets and books to learn all he can about the ailment so that he will know what to expect and what additional information to seek from the doctor.

The complete 17-page "Shoppers' Guide to Surgery" is available to those who are contemplating surgery or merely wish to be knowledgeable should that circumstance arise.

By writing to "Surgery Guide, Pennsylvania Insurance Department, Finance Building, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120," and enclosing your return address, a copy will be sent to you — courtesy "Doctor Denenberg" & Company!

Rating Agnew

President Nixon's selection of Spiro Agnew presents the Republicans with a number of strengths and only one discernible weakness.

First, the strengths. Since 1968, a rapid and inexorable change has been taking place in the two major parties. The Democrats, first abandoning the South and then other traditional constituencies, have moved sharply to the left and become a kind of Social Democratic Party on the European model, deriving their policies — e.g., on Greece, on income redistribution, etc. — from ideological postulates rather than from any inspection of actuality. The Republicans have, overall, moved rightward: the 1968 Southern-cum-border-state strategy, the departure of Mayor Lindsay and the torpedoing of Goodell, the Nixon busing stand, the conservation of the Court. The selection of Agnew unambiguously ratifies this realignment and moves with the grain of history.

It helps in New York

Paradoxically enough, the presence of Agnew on the ticket this year gives Nixon for the first time a real chance to add New York State to his solid Southern and Southwestern base.

In New York, the once-liberal Nelson Rockefeller has eased into alliance with the Conservative Party, which originated as a specifically anti-Rockefeller vehicle. Now that Agnew is on the ticket, Nixon will have the support of the Conservatives, and Rockefeller, who wants a Cabinet post, is expected to deluge the state with money. Added to this, Nixon will have the support of both super-liberal Sen. Jacob Javits and firm conservative Sen. James Buckley. And doubts about Sen. McGovern's Israeli policies are expected to give Nixon an opening with the Jewish vote.

Politics aside for the moment, Agnew himself has some little known but remarkable qualities. For one thing, he is one of the few high officials in Washington who does a great deal of reading.

An active political life usually does not leave much time for it. Even academics and other intellectuals who find their way into government almost invariably find that their reading habits alter drastically. But it is not at all unusual for Agnew to get on the phone to a friend or a colleague to recommend some book or article that he has just finished, usually of a rather weighty sort.

What he reads

He regularly reads "The Public Interest," "Commentary," "National Review," and other journals. He delights in such social commentary as John Aldridge's "In the Country of the Young." Since JFK, it has become commonplace to seed political speeches with quotations from everybody from Plato to Camus. Agnew is unusual in that he finds his own quotations, instead of receiving them from a Sorensen or a Schlesinger. Though Agnew is hated by the run of intellectuals, he is, oddly enough, something of an intellectual himself.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Nixon-McGovern: No difference

Editor, The Record:

There is a very real possibility that many people who are going to vote for a president in November believe that there are major differences in principle between Senator George McGovern and President Richard Nixon.

Unfortunately this just isn't so. To begin with the subject of national defense, there is practically no difference at all in policy, although this is not evident at first glance.

Everyone should be quite familiar with Senator McGovern's statement that he will cut $30 billion out of the defense budget and use the money for domestic problems. This would be suicide in anyone's book.

In 1968, candidate Richard Nixon claimed that he would give the United States overwhelming nuclear superiority over the Soviet Union. It soon became obvious, however, that the President had no intention of carrying out this plan.

One of President Nixon's acts was to appoint Henry Kissinger as his special assistant for National Security affairs. In the New York Times of Dec. 4, 1968, Professor Arthur Schlesinger said he did not feel Professor Kissinger would have accepted the job if he had believed Nixon meant what he said in his campaign speech calling for arms superiority over the Soviet Union.

This foregoing remark is substantiated by looking at the state of our defense system today. The two main weapons in this system are the 1,000 Minutemen missiles with one-megaton warheads and the MIRV warheads which range anywhere from 5,700 to 7,000 warheads, depending on whose reports you subscribe to.

As far as the Minuteman missile is concerned, it has never had an operational test. According to an August 15, 1960 AP dispatch, an attempted test of a Minuteman II missile in Michigan on August 14, 1968 resulted in total failure. The giant ICBM failed to move from its silo when controls were activated. This situation has not been corrected yet.

In regards to the MIRV, nuclear strength is measured in megatons, not the number of warheads. Neither the MIRVs nor the Minuteman missiles have the power to knock out the Soviet missiles in their hardened silos.

Actually the only difference between Nixon and McGovern is that Nixon is a smarter politician. Nixon doesn't come right out and say that he would do the things McGovern advocates because he knows that the American people wouldn't stand for them. Nixon and his sidekick Kissinger are smart enough to cover their moves with conservative rhetoric.

The one problem is that today there are too many politicians and not enough statesmen. A politician is defined as a person who is interested only in getting elected to a political office while a statesman thinks in terms of how his actions will affect the next generation.

While Nixon and McGovern are infatuated with the idea of bringing about "world peace" by scrapping the U.S. defense system, there is still one man who thinks in terms of a strong defense system for America. This man is Gov. George C. Wallace. He has not decided to run as a third party candidate for the presidency yet, but should he decide to do so the American people would have a real choice.

Would Governor Wallace save America? No, he would not. Only a good majority of the American people can do that. With George Wallace as president however, this country would at last stand a fighting chance, because he would point out why certain groups within this country want to scrap the U.S. defense system. I can think of no finer statesman to support for the Presidency than Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

System of justice toppling?

Editor, The Record:

Bravo, for your editorial re: squatters and others who escape prosecution because they raise a loud cry. The citizen who believes in our system is rapidly becoming a non-believer. The believer thinks that he is not getting a fair shake from those in authority who could put our system of laws into the kind of action that will make them work. I speak of judges, juries, district attorneys, and legislators. Unwittingly, they all share in the breakdown of justice.

We all love the "lady", the symbol for justice, but alas, the lady we love so dearly has been wronged; she has lost her virtue. Justice — now there is a word that is being slaughtered! Webster's calls it, in part, "the use of authority and power to uphold what is right, just or lawful". This would indicate to me that impartiality is the root of it all; but today that certainly is not the case.

Judges fear that their handling of cases will be criticized, and-or their decisions overturned on appeal, so consequently they lean so far over to the side of the defendant that it is virtually impossible for the prosecutor to present his case.

District attorneys made deals with judges, i.e., the accepting of a plea to a lower charge, as so often happens in larcenies and cases involving drugs. All the time and money that is spent on warning the public regarding the dangers of drugs is wasted and neutralized by bad administration of the law.

Juries seem reluctant to convict; they cringe in fear when they must consider circumstantial evidence as a factor in their determination of guilt or innocence. Recent trials in Chicago, Seattle, Hartford, Harrisburg, and San Jose are examples of this fear, caused to some extent by another fear, that of convicting because of political beliefs.

This is bad reasoning since the defendants were not on trial for their beliefs, but instead, for their unlawful acts committed because of these beliefs.

To some, justice seems to mean the acquittal of the defendant, never thinking that it is also served when a rightful guilty verdict is reached. If this is done out of mercy, then the wrong sequence is being followed; mercy, the quality that enhances justice, comes after law and justice is applied, not before.

Presently, there is apparently a "thing" going on between jurors and defendants in conspiracy trials. Witness please, the Davis trial when the jury wined and dined with her after the verdict and one juror gave the liberation salute to show that he sympathized with the cause.

Legislators when writing our laws make them so checkfull of loopholes that they, the laws, are "fair game" for defense lawyers and "open season" for appeals judges to rule in favor of a reversal.

Appeals judges — now there is a baffling group! The layman's mind sways like a tree in the breeze when he tries to comprehend the appeals system.

He asks, "How can these appeals judges, all schooled in the same law, think so differently that they constantly overturn rulings made by judges before them on the ladder of appeals?" Perplexing indeed! There are many things beyond our ken, but the law should be within it; too much depends on it; we live our lives in accordance with it.

Perhaps I am over-critical, but I feel that law and justice, the lifeblood of our society, is in trouble and that these faults in the system cry out for attention and hopefully, correction.

If we do not correct our ways and do something about getting the "lady and her scales of justice" back in balance, I fear that she will topple.

McGovern's woes

WILL DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS BACK MCGOVERN PROGRAM? It is doubtful. Many of the platform proposals go beyond anything Democratic congressmen have supported in the past, and McGovern's own views go beyond the platform.

Most of the 14 Senate Democrats up for reelection frankly say they will be hurt by having McGovern at the head of the ticket. This shows the policy gap between the Democratic nominee and the Democrats in Congress.

One reason these Democratic senatorial candidates do not wish to tie their campaigns to that of McGovern is that they disagree with many of his proposals.

This raises doubts whether McGovern could make good on any controversial programs requiring congressional approval.

WILL LARRY O'BRIEN LAST AS MCGOVERN'S CAMPAIGN MANAGER? The senator's aides prevented McGovern from renaming O'Brien as national chairman. They were unable to persuade him not to appoint him campaign chairman.

But already there is muttering and sputtering at a high level. One of his top assistants was explaining that the national committee chairwoman would be in one set of offices, Gary Hart in charge of volunteer grass-roots operations in another and campaign chairman O'Brien in still a third set of offices. He was asked by a reporter: "Won't you have a hard time finding O'Brien?" The reply was: "That would be good, wouldn't it?"

A Washington Post headline reads: "McGovern 'Furious' at staff." The statement cited above, though accurately reported, is an example of what makes the senator furious. It may well be a falsehood, as McGovern states, that O'Brien will play only a figurehead role in the campaign, but it is not a falsehood that one of his top aides said he would.

NIXON ISN'T PRETENDING WHEN HE WARNS against Republican overconfidence. He sees Sen. McGovern developing into a formidable opponent. Here are some of the reasons:

McGovern's campaign will be better financed than was Humphrey's. Each party expects to spend about $35 million.

At this stage the polls can be very misleading if read as a prediction of opinion in November. Nixon is about as far ahead today as he was at the same point four years ago — and won by only an eyelash.

There is no reliable measure of political ferment and the demand for change. This is McGovern's secret weapon.

DEFICIT SPENDING GETS HIGHER AND HIGHER. Nixon Administration officials are now persuaded that federal spending is getting out of control.

The White House is putting a tight squeeze on every department and is demanding lower ceilings for 1973. Nixon aides see the economy getting steadily stronger and fear that too much government spending will imperil the anti-inflation program.

There's one sweet note: For the first time in memory Congress voted down a big ($1 billion) make-work spending bill in an election year.

COMMUNISM AND DEMOCRACY. The don't mix well. Chile's Marxist president Salvador Allende, is finding it out. Chile's economic woes are undercutting Allende's political standing. In a recent by-election his popular unity candidate, though winning, had his former majority cut by 15,000 votes

Childhood memories evoked by antiques

STROUDSBURG — The scenes of their childhood will be recalled by the wealth of toys and other items once dear to children which will be featured at the 28th Pocono Mountains Antique Show and Sale.

The show will open a three-day stay on Aug. 10 in the gymnasium of East Stroudsburg High School under the auspices of the Auxiliary of the General Hospital.

With nostalgia the order of the day visitors to the show will find much to revive the memory of childhood. The Old Village Store, Quakertown, N.J., new to the show this year, will have a child's hut table and the Country Store of Hazleton will have a child's park bench.

Dorothy and Bill Weder of Upper Black Eddy have really concentrated on the Lilliputian world as their booth will have doll house items, R. Tuck and McLaughlin's paper dolls, and Kate Greenway, Rose O'Neill and Outcault calendars.

A family of little piggies in soapstone will come to the show in the booth of Schneiders of Mountainhome.

There will be dolls, dolls, dolls. The Den of Antiquity, Clarks Summit, known for their rare and unusual dolls, will bring a life-sized "dream baby", a mechanical doll, and a German doll made for Strawbridge and Clothier that is 36 inches tall.

Kay Baker of Endicott, N.Y., will present a Floradora doll, dressed in green velvet; a Cujo and Alto Dressel doll named Mabel in red velvet, and a Simon and Halberg doll in a gold suit among others. They have German bisque heads and most have kid bodies with joined arms and legs.

She is also bringing a signed and dated patchwork covered velvet coverlet of the kind being recreated by artisans in Appalachia featured in the current National Geographic.

Annette Winner of Huntingdon Valley will have French and German dolls and a variety of old toys. A baby blue jay by the world famous Boehm will be featured in the booth of the Jacksers of Easton.

The show being held for the benefit of the General Hospital of Monroe County will be open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 10 and 11, and from noon to 10 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 11.

All articles are for sale. The Country Kitchen will sell homebaked goodies, fresh produce. Lunches, suppers and snacks will be served in the high school cafeteria.

Bring garden indoors

By ANNE HINKLE
Asst. Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — A tremendous surge toward indoor-outdoor living in open-plan housing coupled with more leisure time brings all of us closer to nature. And we can bring nature closer to us by letting it be a part of the interior of our homes.

The summer months provide us with a bountiful world of plants to create nature arrangements. Although plant materials attractive in arrangements are numerous, many of you may have grown your own flowers in a back yard garden and wish to bring these parts of nature into your home.

Consider that the instant you remove a flower from the plant, it is living on "borrowed time." Some flowers, such as chrysanthemums, asters, and orchids will keep fresh several weeks after being cut. The life of daylilies is measured by hours; that of morning glories by minutes.

Tips on cut flowers

The ability to keep fresh after cutting is a characteristic peculiar to each flower. Certain methods of cutting, preparing and caring for flowers after cutting from the plant will prolong their time of beauty and your talents displayed in the arrangement.

Late afternoon or evening is the best time to cut flowers. Select flowers for arranging which are in the mature or nearly mature stages of development. When cut in the tight bud stage, many flowers are so soft they won't keep well or may not open at all. At the other extreme, flowers past their prime quickly perish.

When cutting flowers, use a sharp knife or shears. It is best not to cut so far down the plant that the stems are hard and woody for these stems won't take up water readily. Always handle flowers by their stems; warm hands bruise and dry out petals.

As soon as possible after cutting, place only the cut ends of the stems in warm water — 90 to 110 degrees F. (bath temperature for most people). Leave stems in water at least until water has reached room temperature.

Flowers with woody stems such as lilacs, some chrysanthemums, zinnias and marigolds should have their stems split and crushed 2 to 4 inches from the cut ends.

Arrange your flowers being sure all the ends of the stems in the container are in water at all times. Foliage and green leafy materials soon decay causing water to become foul and plug the cut stems of the flowers. In general, it's well to remove all leaves and stems that will be under water.

Nature will be closer to you and alive longer in your home if you consider these cutting, preparing and caring techniques for fresh flowers.

Woman's Club workshops climax today

STROUDSBURG — Members of the Woman's Club of Stroudsburg will have a final work session on Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Stroud Community House to complete preparation for the club table during Sidewalk Days, Aug. 3, 4 and 5.

The members have been meeting each week since June working on unusual handcraft items for the sale. Others have been working at home. All completed work is to be turned in Tuesday at the Community House as well as white elephant items from members.

Mushroom study explained

TANNERSVILLE — A thorough study of many books is necessary to identify edible mushrooms, Dr. Eden Gray, mycologist, warned members of the Pocono Garden Club at their July meeting held at the firehouse in Tannersville.

Identification must include size, shape, thickness of the gills and spore prints, she said. Among the non-poisonous variety found here are the lavender mushroom and the white puff ball. Fall is an ideal time to study fungi, she said, when they are in abundant supply.

Several arrangements featuring fungi were exhibited by members of the club.

Mrs. Charles Husted introduced a petition requesting the Pocono Twp. supervisors to spray for gypsy moth, singled by members. The supervisors have presented the petition to the county commissioners requesting that Pocono Twp. area be sprayed in 1973.

Since the Pocono Garden Club's annual Flower Show is scheduled for Aug. 23 and 24, there will be no regular meeting for August.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Herta Ackerman and Mrs. Klara Wandschneider.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fuhrer

Fuhrer-Geshensky wedding held

DELAWARE WATER GAP

— Miss Yona Geshensky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Geshensky of Main St., Delaware Water Gap, was married on Sunday, June 18, at 10 a.m. at her home to Edwin Charles Fuhrer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fuhrer of R.D. 4, East Stroudsburg.

Rabbi Feinsilver officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a street-length dress of chiffon with long sheer full sleeves and rolled neckline. She wore a three-quarter length veil and carried a bouquet of white and red sweetheart roses.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Ora Geshensky, as maid of honor. She wore a multi-colored streetlength dress with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Fred Bartosh Jr. of Chestnut St., Pen Argyl was best man. Canopy holders were Mark Fuhrer, Timothy Fuhrer, Kevin Young and Sam

Lesco.

A reception was held for 75 guests at the Carriage House with the room decorated with white bells and floral centerpieces arranged by the bridegroom's mother and aunts. Organ music was played by Hilda Robbins.

Leaving for a camping trip to New York State, the bride wore a blue pantsuit with matching blouse.

The bride was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in 1968 and East Stroudsburg State College in 1972 with a degree in elementary education. She has been working at the Day Care Center, East Stroudsburg.

Her husband was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in 1968 and is a senior at Drexel University where he is studying chemical engineering.

They will make their home for the summer at R.D. 4, East Stroudsburg, and in the fall will live in Philadelphia.

Yacht Club style show staged by members

HAWLEY — A special program called "The Treasure Chest of Fashion," presented by the Women's Association of the Lake Wallenpaupack Yacht Club for the entire membership followed a dinner at the clubhouse on Saturday, July 22.

The fashion show was to have included 1972 styles as well as fashions from the past, but the disastrous fire at Blueberry Hill early that morning completely destroyed the Country Set shop which was to be featured.

The show became exclusively an exhibition of unusual clothes from the treasure chests and attics of many members.

Mrs. Henry Thomas, president of the Woman's Association, in a white lace gown of the 1900 era introduced her officers and executive board, wearing dresses which dated as far back as 1885, who sang a song of welcome.

The fashion show that followed presented Mrs. Charles Stolberg as a school girl of yesteryear complete with straw sailor hat and romper dress, Mrs. William Potthoff in a Hawaiian muumuu, Mrs. John Larson in a 100-year-old Japanese kimono, Mrs. Charles Traverse as Theda Bara, Mrs. Sheldon Evans as Clara Bow, Mrs. Earl Sieling as an Amish woman of the 1800's, Mrs.

Charles Fessler as Gypsy Rose Lee in her younger days, and, at the finale, Miss Suzy Porter was a bride in a 1902 bridal gown of Belgian lace.

Men's styles were represented by Earl Sieling and Charles Traverse as a pair of beach-boys circa 1915. Henry Thomas modeled fur fashions for men, first as a prehistoric caveman and also as a 1920's college youth complete with raccoon coat.

Mrs. Harvey Mason was chairman of arrangements for the evening, assisted by Mrs. Leland Gumble and Mrs. Fred HeHart. Also assisting in the program were Mrs. Edwin Gumble and Mrs. Frank Uridel. Stanley Moldawsky played the musical accompaniment for the show.

On Wednesday July 26, seventeen members of the Women's Association enjoyed a hoagie luncheon party at the home of Mrs. John Larson of Mountainhome, and attended a performance of "Hello Dolly" at the Pocono Playhouse.

Miss Mitchell honored at shower

STROUDSBURG — A bridal shower was held at the home of Mrs. Blanche Mackey, Stroudsburg, R.D. 4, in honor of Estelle Mitchell, fiancée of Charles Spencer, who will be married on Aug. 26.

Attending the shower were Mrs. Irene Mitchell, Mrs. Harriet DeRosa, Mrs. Willita Brooks, Mrs. Lila Shafer, Mrs. Mary Whitaker, Mrs. Josephine Johnson, Mrs. Kay Kneipert, Mrs. Lucille Woody, Mrs. Beverly Johnson, Mrs. Florida Armati, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Etta Bevil and Mrs. Marguerite Gray.

Youngsters' flea market for PARC

STROUDSBURG — The two youngsters who last year raised $200 for the Pennsylvania Assn. for Retarded Children through their flea market are out to better their quota this year.

They have scheduled the flea market for Aug. 5 at Walt's Diner parking lot, North Fifth St. and are requesting anyone who has something to contribute to the sale to call them or to leave the donations at Bruce Price's Esso Station, North Fifth St.

The telephone number is 421-6334 and callers should ask for Laurel or Nadine.

Connie Marie Villa

Villa, Dresser troth

MOUNTAINHOME — Announcement is made of the engagement of Connie Marie Villa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles John Villa of Mountainhome, to Darrell Allen Dresser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Dresser of Potomac, Md.

Miss Villa, a graduate of Pocono Mountain Jointure and Marywood College, completed her nutrition-medical internship as a L.T. (j.g.) with the United States Public Health Service Hospital, Staten Island, N.Y.

A registered dietitian, she is in private practice as a nutrition counselor and consultant and is also employed by HEW in the Department of Agriculture and Statistics.

Mr. Dresser is a graduate of Walter Johnson High School, Bethesda, Md. and attended the University of Maryland. He served as a Navy Petty Officer for four years in Vietnam and was a diver for the recovery force which recovered Gemini 8 astronauts, Neil Armstrong and David Scott.

At present he is employed by the Paul Revere Companies as an executive sales consultant. He is completing courses for a Certified Life Underwriter's degree at Washington University, Washington, D.C.

An October wedding is planned.

Opening lead — nine of clubs.

Some problems that occur during the play can be solved with absolute confidence in the outcome. But there are others where you simply aren't sure of your ground and the best you can do is to take the course of action that is more likely to be right than wrong. Here is such a case.

Presume you're East, defending against four spades, and partner leads the nine of clubs. Dummy plays the king, but, if you're a thoughtful player, you don't automatically play with the ace.

Instead, you take a modicum of time to survey the hand as a whole, and, more particularly, your play at this point. You don't want to be stampeded into taking the ace and then start to think the hand over, for that would be doing things in exactly the wrong order.

First, you try to judge the significance of the club lead. You know the nine is not a fourth best lead, nor can it be the top card of a sequence, since the eight is in your hand. It could be the top of a worthless three-card suit, but it is far more likely to represent a singleton or a doubleton.

If the nine is a singleton, it is obviously right to take the ace and return the suit. But if it is a doubleton, the proper defense must be to let dummy win the trick with the king, at the same time signaling with the eight to show the ace.

There is no good reason to assume that declarer has five clubs rather than four; on the contrary, he is far more likely to have only four clubs. You therefore permit dummy to win the trick with the king, and sooner or later partner gets a club ruff to put the hand down one.

Sunday becomes shopping day in local supermarkets

BY JOE MIEGOC
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — A nationwide trend involving supermarkets remaining open seven days a week has spread into the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area.

Area consumers are now able to shop Sundays for necessary items which would not have been available to them a few months ago.

Acme Markets in both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, IGA Market in Stroudsburg and the new Victory Market in East Stroudsburg all are open Sundays in an effort to stimulate business, with work periods running from 9 a.m., when Victory opens, to 10 p.m., when the Stroudsburg IGA closes.

An Acme Market spokesman in Philadelphia explained his firm's intention to remain open as a way "to keep up with the competition."

"Competition is rough. If the competition is open, we have to open just to keep up with them," he said, adding that this procedure keeps Acme in the running for Sunday business.

Competition stiff
"I don't know why these other operations are open and I don't know how many people work there on Sundays, but to say it bluntly, we are open because they are," he said.

An important facet of any Sunday business is its involvement with Pennsylvania's infamous "Blue Laws." Certain areas of a store's business fall under the law, while other areas do not.

The law states, in part, that "clothing and wearing apparel, clothing accessories, furniture, housewares, jewelry, silverware, watches, clocks, luggage, musical instruments and recordings, or toys, excluding novelties, souvenirs and antiques," shall not be sold on Sundays.

Under the law, such items as shirts, sandals and household items such as can openers and soup ladles are prohibited for sale in stores such as the Acmes, Victory and IGA on Sundays.

Robert Steinmetz, president of the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn., said that these stores would refuse to sell these and other items falling into these categories to buyers on Sundays.

The penalty for violating this law, Act 51, Public Law 872, is set at $100 for the first violation and "for the second or any subsequent offenses the violator will pay a fine not to exceed $200 or undergo imprisonment not exceeding 30 days in default of the fine."

Another regulation stipulated by the law is that these retail businesses which remain open Sundays and meet the regulations on goods to be offered for sale must also limit their staffs on Sunday to less than 10 persons.

The law does not apply in this instance to "retail establishments where fresh meats, produce and groceries are offered or sold by the proprietor or members of his immediate family or employing less than 10 persons, nor shall it apply to any retail establishment where food is prepared on the premises for human consumption."

The last sentence of the law covers the "fast food restaurants," such as Burger Chef, Dairy Queen, McDonald's and the like.

Both Acme Markets, Victory Markets and the IGA all fall below the limit of 10 persons working Sundays.

Closings supported
During April, the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn., had adopted a resolution in support of Sunday closings. This action evolved from a protest to Monroe County District Attorney James F. Marsh over the Sunday operation of a factory clothing outlet on Eighth Street. Clothing sales are banned by law on Sunday.

Steinmetz also explained the association's actions concerning their complaints about the factory clothing outlet. The factory was owned by Eugene Zelenke.

"We complained there because the operation on Sundays was in violation of the law," said Steinmetz. "The man was operating a clothing store and under the law, you can't sell wearing apparel. It was strictly a clothing store."

Steinmetz also said he had yet to receive any complaints concerning the Sunday sales by markets in this area.

"We haven't had any complaints or indications of unhappiness from people concerned with Sunday sales, so they must be complying with the law," he said.

Asked what the procedure would be if a complaint was received, Steinmetz explained that the first move would be to go to the district attorney's office.

"But," he said, "we would prefer to have all merchants in the area affected by the law live by the spirit of the law. We would like to see the law adhered to. If someone does not stick to the law then we will take some action. But we like to see the law followed," he said.

Social Security increases no big help to area's aged

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Record breaking increases in Social Security payments sending $1.86 million more to beneficiaries in Monroe County may loose magnitude due to living costs since the last jump.

The recently passed 20 per cent increase may allow local recipients to cover the insuring cost of living increases with little to spare in terms of real gains.

"I think the increase will just cover the increase in the cost of living since the last raise," said Fred Lee, assistant to the state director for Northeastern Pennsylvania's American Association of Retired Persons.

Lee said he would classify the living costs in Monroe County as "moderately high" for retired persons.

Still, the new increase will probably allow Social Security recipients to increase their buying power somewhat, Lee said.

He said the November White House Conference on Aging, to which he was a delegate, had stated the need for a 25 per cent increase in payments.

"My own thought was that if we get 10 per cent it would be pretty good," Lee said.

Under the new legislation starting in 1974 there will be an automatic increase in benefits whenever the consumer price index rises three or more per cent.

But 1974 is a long way off for some of Monroe County's elderly who look upon the recent legislation as long overdue.

At the lower end of the averaging of benefit increases are the pensioners living in public housing at Avon Court in East Stroudsburg.

Some residents of the projects fear the increased Social Security will be eaten up by living costs.

Under the new set-up, recipients will collect approximately $1,557 a year, on the average according to statistics.

To one elderly woman in Avon Court $1,557 represents about twice as much as she will actually be receiving this year.

Currently the woman lives on a $64 check from Social Security each month or $768 a year. With the 20 per cent increase, the average figure is still a dream for her.

Payments based on the amount of work done during a lifetime do not amount to much, according to the tenant who had six children and was forced to work only intermittently before she was eligible for Social Security.

She said the additional amount might allow her to make more shopping trips to Stroudsburg by taxi. Fare these days is $1.50.

Her neighbor across the drive said the increase would help out for a while, but he thinks the cost of living will soon wipe out the gains.

Public housing tenants fear the attending rent increases following every increase in income.

Charles Van Sciver, executive director of the Monroe County Housing Authority, said rents won't change until there is an income review in January.

Rents have to change as income changes, Van Sciver said, but the law prohibits demanding more than 25 per cent of a person's income.

Increases in rent appear inevitable for elderly tenants receiving a hike in Social Security, but the limit set by law means some of the new payments will be kept for personal use.

A sudden bill for repairs or medical service could absorb the entire Social Security increase, leaving tenants with higher rents, one tenant said.

"I'm not too sure how this all works out," he stated, "but it seems every time there is an increase in Social Security, I lose money."

Variance requested

STROUDSBURG — No objections were raised Monday at a hearing of the Stroudsburg Zoning Board on a request for a variance by Mrs. Estella Decker, 19 Ransberry Ave., East Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Decker applied for a variance of 225 feet in lot width in order to build a house on a non-conforming lot located at 130 Stokes Ave., Stroudsburg. The property is in a R-1 zone.

Final action is still awaiting receipt of the official transcript.

State plans some changes in proposed hospital rules

HARRISBURG (UPI) — An attorney for the Public Welfare Department said Monday there will be some changes in the controversial new "consumer-oriented" regulations proposed for hospitals in the state.

Marx Leopold, chief counsel for the department, said all of the testimony will be reviewed and the regulations will be changed before they take effect.

Hospital administrators were critical of the regulations during hearings in Harrisburg last week. The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania threatened a court fight.

"They will be a little different," Leopold said, but he indicated the department probably will not make any major changes in the two most controversial parts of the new regulations.

These provisions are: —Each hospital governing board must include representatives of the community, different age groups, minorities, women and clinic patients.

—Before a hospital starts a new program or adds to the facilities, it must seek a "certificates of need" from the state regional comprehensive health planning agency to cut down on duplication of services.

"With the certificate of need provision," Leopold said, "we'll probably fill it out with some more procedural steps to clarify what the hospitals must do. But we are definitely committed to a certificate of need."

"We hope we can come to some kind of mutual agreement with the hospitals. But there is no way that you can really make them happy."

James Neeley, executive vice president of the Hospital Association, said the department was usurping the power of the legislature by proposing the tough, new regulations.

"While we may agree in principle with much of what is proposed in the revised regulations," he said, "we will not stand by and watch the administrative branch of government usurp authority which is exclusively the legislature's."

"Failing to gain satisfaction through our testimony, we will immediately seek injunctive relief from the Commonwealth Court."

Charles E. Swisher, administrator at the General Hospital of Monroe County, supports the association's position against new regulation proposed by the Department of Public Welfare.

"We are a Pennsylvania corporation under a non-profit law with a charter issued by the state," Swisher explained.

"Our bylaws state the board should be composed of representatives from all territories covered. Presently, our board contains women, disadvantaged people, and others, but no doctors."

"We will continue to adhere to our state charter and the existing law," Swisher said.

There are several bills now before the legislature which would accomplish the same purpose as the Welfare Department's proposed new regulations on hospitals.

"The problem is that the bills haven't gone anywhere," Leopold said.

Who serves on hospital board?

EAST STROUDSBURG — Twenty-five persons serve on the board of directors of the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Charles Swisher, hospital administrator, has defended the composition of the board in light of proposed new Pennsylvania Department of Welfare regulations which would require changes in the boards.

The welfare department's proposed regulation would require consumer and community representatives on hospital boards in addition to persons from minority groups.

"Presently, our board contains women, disadvantaged people, and others, but no doctors," Swisher said.

Following is a list of the 25 local hospital directors and their occupations:

Charles R. Bensinger Jr., attorney; J.L. Cohen, accountant; Loring H. Cramer, president of the board, businessman; Mrs. Elmer Christine, attorney's wife and member of Women's Auxiliary; H. John Davis, businessman; Roger A. Dunning, vice president of the board, educator; Jesse R.S. Flory, retired banker; Russell Hughes, executive.

M. Russell Imbt Sr., executive; Mrs. Harold Ingraham, housewife, organizer of the local chapter of Gray Ladies; Garland C. Lipscomb, landscaper; William V. Nixon, real estate executive; Harry Lee, attorney; Mrs. Walter McCelland, housewife, member of the Women's Auxiliary; William V. Malleson, Jr., resort owner; Samuel Newman, attorney; Charles Poalillo, resort owner.

F. Linton Patterson, executive; Mrs. Seldon Ponder, secretary of the board, member of Women's Auxiliary; Mrs. George Richards, housewife, member of Women's Auxiliary; Franklin Smith retired administrator; Raymond Serfass, guidance counselor; John S. Shinn, resort owner; and Dr. John Wildrick, educator.

Airline service likely at Mt. Pocono airport

BY SKIP TAGGART
Pocono Record Reporter

MOUNT POCONO — The Pocono Mountains Municipal Airport may soon be contacting such scheduled air carriers as Altair, Monmouth and Allegheny Airlines to provide service to the metropolitan areas from the Mount Pocono field.

It was announced this weekend that Pocono Airlines, Inc., the firm formerly chartered to provide this service from the Mount Pocono airport, would sink $85,000 into the airport at Avoca to expand its facilities.

A check with the Public Utilities Commission in Harrisburg revealed Pocono Airlines' charter to operate from Mount Pocono was canceled in January. A PUC spokesman explained the charter was canceled because the firm did not re-file an insurance statement.

Ken Bell, fixed base operator at the Mount Pocono airport, said the charter's cancellation was "very interesting." He said he and the airport authority had been hesitant to contact any other potential carriers until Pocono Airlines made either a definite move to resume operations or cancel them completely.

Neither he, nor the authority, had ever been contacted and told the charter had been canceled.

The subject of scheduled air carrier service has been a prime issue over the years at the Mount Pocono Airport. A lack of substantial passenger demands caused the airline to suspend its scheduled flights when the airport stated it could not subsidize the cost of the operation.

Walter Hoffman, president of Pocono Airlines, Inc., and owner of Birchwood Lodge and the accompanying Birchwood-Pocono Airpark, was out of the area and could not be reached for comment.

Dan Yatsko, chief flight instructor for the Pocono Airlines flight school at Avoca, recently indicated the firm's expansion in the Wilkes-Barre-Scranton area may facilitate resumption of flights into the Mount Pocono airport.

Yatsko said service to Mount Pocono and other points was a "possibility," but could not elaborate on the subject. When asked about the charter cancellation he said it would not prohibit service to the field.

"We can still fly in there if there is a passenger demand and if the stop is approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board," he said. He then stated the PUC charter is only required if the airline is based at the field. When asked if the company was now based and chartered at Avoca he replied, "Yes. That's correct."

He dismissed the possibility that potential air passengers in the Poconos may be picked up at the Birchwood-Pocono Airpark rather than the Mount Pocono airport.

"We use 15 passenger "turbo-jet aircraft," he said. "The runway at Birchwood would have to be about twice as long as it is now to handle our planes." The Birchwood strip is only 2,200 feet long.

Arthur McCambridge, chairman of the Pocono Mountains Municipal Airport Authority, could not be reached for comment.

It is expected the cancellation of the Pocono Airlines charter will be one of the main topics for discussion at the authority meeting at 8 p.m. today at the airport.

Truck crashes on Rt. 80

SCOTRUN — A Williamsport truck driver escaped injury Monday after his tractor-trailer skidded out of control and jackknifed on the wet surface of Interstate Route 80 near Scotrun.

The driver, identified as Howard Eisner, Jr., 37, told Pennsylvania State Police investigators from the Mount Pocono Troop S barracks he was traveling east in the right lane when he applied his brakes to slow the truck.

The brakes apparently locked, throwing the truck out of control. Eisner jackknifed the rig while trying to maintain control and it came to rest on the south berm of the highway near the Scotrun rest area.

The truck remained upright throughout the accident but damage to the vehicle was estimated at $3,000. A spokesman from the Mount Pocono barracks said a portion of the right eastbound lane was blocked for approximately one hour until the rig was removed from the scene.

Undeveloped land assessment at issue

County seeks open space tax break

STROUDSBURG — A drive to have Monroe County covered by a state law permitting lower assessments for undeveloped tracts will be staged by the Monroe County Commissioners.

The county officials decided Monday to attempt an expansion of Pennsylvania's Act 515 open space law, to include sixth class counties such as Monroe.

The commissioners stated they would contact state legislators and place the matter on the agenda at the August county commissioners' convention in Pittsburgh. They will ask that the law now applying to first through fourth class counties be accessible to all counties.

The act results in lower taxes for qualified property owners who put their land under covenants with the county for five year periods.

It was adopted by the state legislature in 1966 and endorsed by conservationists because reduced assessments are offered in exchange for the promise to keep land in open space.

The law applies to most kinds of land and breaking the covenant results in a penalty.

Benefits property owner

Conceived to benefit property owners where land has a high value but the owner is interested in maintaining it undeveloped, the law eliminates the penalty of forcing property owners to pay high taxes while their land remains basically open space.

In a recent court decision in Bucks County the law withstood a test of constitutionality.

Officials in that county hoped for a favorable ruling because the county had recently gone through a reappraisal of all property, attempting to list it at fair market value, and then set the assessment rate at 25 per cent.

Almost identical activity has taken place in Monroe County in recent months.

In Bucks County many assessments multiplied causing farmers to seek relief because their land now has a higher value reflecting development potential.

Informed opinion in Monroe County sees an analogy with the Bucks County situation.

Thousands of acres of land in Monroe County are exempted as flood plain or because it is under the Department of Environmental Resources through the Bureau of Forests and Waters.

Inclusion of Monroe County under the terms of Act 515 could reduce overall assessment as much as 20 per cent if all potentially eligible land in the county is declared open space, according to one source.

Space was also a problem for the county officials Monday when they deliberated a possible land swap with Northeastern National Bank.

Pending for some time, the matter of a property trade between the bank and the county was tabled again, blocked by the possibility the courthouse might need the property in event of expansion.

At issue is joint ownership of a building at 609 Sarah Street, between the bank branch office and the courthouse. The county owns the half of the property closest to the bank and the bank owns the half on the courthouse side.

Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said it would be unfair to allow the trade to take place if the courthouse is to expand at its present location and the county takes over all the property down to Sixth Street.

Since 1968 the county has had two plans for expanding or relocating the courthouse.

Cut in mental health funds could hamper local agency

STROUDSBURG — A $12 million state-wide budget slash for mental health agencies is not expected to immediately be felt at the Carbon-Monroe-Pike Mental Health Mental Retardation Agency, a spokesman said Monday.

"We don't know at this point what the effect of the cut will be," said Thomas Foley, administrator of the MHMR office. He said the programming for the agency will probably be able to handle any cuts due to the timing.

Foley said any funding cuts will have to be in the areas of either general funding or categorical funding — where money is earmarked for a specific purpose.

Currently the local MHMR program is on categorical funding for three programs: group housing for the mentally retarded, a recent organized and approved $12,000 program for alcohol and drug abuse and special services for the mentally retarded.

Foley said the housing program will probably not be stopped by a cut in funds because money has already been received to begin searching out facilities for supervised living.

He said any cuts in this area would probably mean fewer than the planned number of living units.

The alcohol and drug abuse program is also in its infancy, according to Foley. He said the hiring of staff for the program and the implementation of the full $12,000 program may be curtailed if the cuts are made in this area.

Doubting any money will be taken away from special services, the third area of categorical funding, Foley said he thought the cuts would be in the general funding of services undertaken by MHMR every year.

Pocono Downs — easy access; no easy horse doping

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A House committee witness, Bobby Byrne, touched off a series of charges against thoroughbred race tracks, including Pocono Downs, at a hearing late in June. Record reporter Joe DeVivo investigated conditions at the track to determine the credibility of the charges. In the first of two articles, DeVivo looks at the Pocono Downs stable area.)

By JOE DeVIVO
Pocono Record Reporter
WILKES-BARRE — It's easy to gain admittance to the stable area at Pocono Downs.

But drugging a horse without being detected would be considerably harder. In late June, a House committee witness, identified as Bobby Byrne, implicated Pocono Downs as one of a number of East Coast tracks where races had been fixed.

This reporter attempted to gain entrance to the stable area to investigate how easy or difficult it would be for an unauthorized person to get near the thoroughbreds.

I arrived at the track at approximately 3:45 p.m. and drove into an entrance marked "Stable Area: Horsemen Only". A Pocono Downs security guard stopped me at the gate and asked if I had a horseman's license.

"No," I replied, "but I'm a friend of Pete Maxwell and visiting in this area. I wonder if I could see him?"

Maxwell has been the leading trainer at the Plains Township track for the past three years. Actually, I had never met Maxwell, nor any other trainer.

I parked my car and walked into the office, occupied by about three or four more security guards. One mistook me for a groom and questioned me about a loose horse in the stable area.

After replying all I wanted was a pass to Maxwell's barn, the guard recorded my name and "address." No identification was necessary and Pennsylvania sufficed as my residence.

The guard stated Maxwell's barns were "V" and "W" and I could walk over to the stables. The pass allowed me to wander unbothered in the stable area. Although there were no guards near the barns, grooms and trainers were close to nearly all the horses.

But once in, it seemed to be a difficult, if not impossible task, for a person to be unnoticed long enough to be able to drug one of the animals.

In addition, all the horses were in unmarked stalls. Any "fixer" would have a hard time telling which horses were entered for the night's card.

After roaming the entire stable area for about 20 minutes, I attempted to pass through a barn where no one appeared to be present. It was barn "V", one of Maxwell's barns. At last, I had apparently found a barn where horses were seemingly unprotected.

Suddenly I was spotted by a groom.

"Can I help you?" Pressed for a quick reply, I stammered I had lost my way and was looking for barn "R". The groom politely indicated the direction and I walked out.

One measure of security to prevent unauthorized persons in the stables and the paddock is the rule preventing any visitors in those areas after 6 p.m. The only time I was stopped all day occurred around 6:45 p.m. as I was interviewing a jockey near the paddock.

A security guard was quick to approach and reminded me of the violation of the "no visitors after six" rule.

Later, I entered the grandstand area to watch the betting windows. Sen. Henry J. Cianfranci, in a June visit to Philadelphia's Liberty Bell Park, had observed "bell ringing" at the $50 and $100 windows.

"Bell ringing" is a practice where pari-mutual machinery remains open for bets for a brief moment or two after the race has actually started. Theoretically, the machines lock when the electric starting gate opens.

"If enough high bets are placed during that period," said Cianfranci, "it could greatly affect the odds of the race and ultimately the payoffs."

Pocono Downs is clear of any similar charges in its mutual machines, due to a new ruling by the Pennsylvania State Racing Commission.

Since the opening of Pocono's Shamrock meet, mutual machines lock when the horses reach the starting gate, instead of when the gates open.

I checked the windows before the fourth race. When the bell rang, signifying the horses had reached the gate, the machines locked and the betting lines cleared. One better attempt to make a wager at the $50 window after the bell, but the seller shook his head and futilely pressed the machine to show it would produce no more tickets.

Conclusion: Entrance to the stable area by a non-horseman is not too difficult. No identification is necessary, but your name is recorded in a book. Once in, chances appear slight a person could find a certain horse and "dope" the animal without being detected, since horsemen are numerous on the grounds.

NEXT: Jockeys at Pocono Downs discuss their careers and the chances of illegal activities at a race track.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Dick Allen's two inside the park home runs produced five runs and helped Stan Bahnsen to his 13th win of the season Monday as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Minnesota Twins 8-1.

Allen's first inside the park homer scored Pat Kelly and Luis Alvarado to give the White Sox a 3-0 first inning lead. Allen circled the bases after his line drive bounced over the head of Minnesota centerfielder Bobby Darwin who slipped trying to field the ball.

Allen's second blast also bounced away from Darwin who was trying to make a shoestring catch, and the White Sox' first baseman scored behind Alvarado to give Chicago a 6-0 fifth inning lead. Alvarado had singled in Kelly with Chicago's fourth run earlier in the inning.

Allen's hits were his 12th and 13th home runs in July and boosted his major league-leading total to 27.

The Twins scored their only run off Bahnsen (13-11) in the fifth when pinchhitter Jim Nettles singled in Darwin from second base to cut Chicago's lead to 6-1.

Ed Herrmann hit a 400-foot homer over the right center-field fence in the sixth inning to increase Chicago's lead to 7-1.

Dischinger sent to Trail Blazers

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association Monday obtained veteran forward Terry Dischinger from the Detroit Pistons in a trade involving Fred Foster of the Philadelphia 76ers, who goes to Detroit.

Portland gave up its second round college draft choice in 1973 and an undisclosed amount of cash to Philadelphia for Foster, a swing man who normally plays forward, and then sent Foster to Detroit for the 6-6 Dischinger.

Dischinger is the NBA's fourth all-time career percentage field goal shooter with a 50.8 per cent average on 6,488 attempts. His career average is 14.7 points in 589 games.

Except for two years in military service, he has played in the NBA since 1962, when he was Rookie of the Year following a top collegiate career at Purdue.

Foster has averaged 9.4 points per game since entering the NBA with the Cincinnati Royals in 1968. He played two seasons with the Royals before being traded to Philadelphia for center Darral Imhoff in 1970. Foster averaged 11.9 points with the 76ers last year.

"We feel Foster will help us," said Piston Coach Earl Lloyd. "He's a strong and aggressive player and has a way of making things happen for the best when he's on the floor." Foster's ability to play either forward or guard "should prove extra beneficial to the Pistons," Lloyd said.

Tourney slated

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Men's Tennis Tournament is to start at 5:30 p.m. Monday. Entrance fee may be paid to either John DeVivo at Lim's Sports Shop or Bill Hay. Each player is required to furnish a new can of balls.

Transfer denied

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, informed the Chicago Bulls Monday that their request for transfer of ownership to Chicago Professional Sports Corp., had been rejected because it failed to get the approval of 75 per cent of the NBA owners.

However, Kennedy said that a large number of owners objected to the manner in which the voting was conducted — by telegram — and abstained from voting. Therefore, he said the matter could be placed on the agenda of the NBA's annual summer meeting, Aug. 10, at Chicago if requested by the Bulls.

No raindrops on head

It was camera day at the Eagles' training camp in Reading Monday until the rains came. Eagles defensive back Leroy Keyes can only watch the rains come down. Practice was postponed and so was camera day.

Williams' 4 hits ties N.L. lead

CHICAGO (UPI)—Billy Williams cracked out four straight hits to tie for the National League batting lead and Fergusson Jenkins scattered six hits and drove in two runs with a single to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 4-0 victory over St. Louis Monday and a sweep of the four-game set against the Cardinals.

Jenkins, posting his 14th win against nine losses, hurled his 19th complete game of the season.

The Cubs scored their first run after two were out in the third inning against loser Reggie Cleveland. Glenn Beckert singled to center and raced to third on a single to left by Williams. When Lou Brock let the ball get by him for an error, Beckert scored.

Ron Santo opened the Chicago fourth with a double but was out at third on a ground ball by Jose Cardenal. Kessinger walked, and Cardenal stole third as Cleveland tried to pick Kessinger off first. Kessinger then stole second unmolested. Jenkins slashed a high slider into centerfield, scoring Santo and Cardenal.

A double by Williams in the fifth, an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Santo produced the final Cub run.

Your tax problems

"Your Tax Problems" is published as a public service and is prepared by the Philadelphia District Office of the Internal Revenue Service. Send queries to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 401 N. Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 19108. For personal replies give name and address.

Q. Is it true that many retirees do not have to pay tax on the gain from the sale of their homes?

A. Yes. If you sold or exchanged your principal residence during the year, you may generally elect to exclude from your gross income part or all of the gain on that sale or exchange if: 1) you were 65 or older before the date of the sale or exchange; and 2) you owned and used the property sold or exchanged as your principal residence for a period of at least five years within the eight-year period ending on the date of the sale or exchange.

Taxpayers who meet these requirements can elect to exclude their entire gain if the adjusted sales price is $20,000 or less. If the adjusted sales price is over $20,000, an election may be made to exclude part of the gain.

For more information, see IRS Publication 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home." It's available free by dropping a postcard to your IRS district office.

Q. I take and develop photographs as a hobby and occasionally earn some money from it. I know I have to report the income but may I deduct the expenses of my photographic hobby?

A. From your hobby income, you may deduct items that are ordinarily deductible, whether incurred in a business or nonbusiness activity. Examples of such expenses, are interest and taxes. Under proposed rules, if your income still exceeds these expenses, you may deduct other related expenses from the excess income in the following order: 1) other business expenses that do not involve adjustments to the basis of property; and 2) depreciation and other such deductions that involve adjustments to the basis of property.

In the event that your expenses for taxes and interest exceed the hobby income, that excess may be deducted on Schedule A if you itemize deductions. Losses sustained in pursuing the hobby are not deductible.

Q. My employer reimburses me for business travel. Does this reimbursement have to be reported on the tax return?

A. Reimbursements and allowances for expenses you pay or incur for travel in connection with your employment must be included in your income tax return unless:

(1) You are required to, and do, make an accounting for such expenses to your employer;

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

(2) You do not deduct such expenses on your return; and
(3) The sum of such expenses equals the total amount of reimbursements and allowances.

If you include the allowance or reimbursement in income, you may deduct your allowable expenses to the extent of the allowance or reimbursement.

Q. I know that in order to claim my son as a dependent I must furnish more than half of his total support for the year. Is everything I spend for him considered as total support furnished by me?

A. No. Generally, total support includes expenditures for providing food, shelter, clothing, education, medical and dental care, recreation, transportation, and similar necessities. However, certain items are specifically excluded from total support. Some of these are life insurance premiums, the purchase of an automobile, Federal, State or local income tax payments, Social Security tax expenditures and funeral expenses.

Q. I will be eligible for social security in a few months. If I sell stock, acquired years ago, will this be considered income if the proceeds exceed the maximum income provision allowed by Social Security?

A. For social security purposes, the income from the sale of stock is not considered earned income and will not affect your benefits under the social security provisions. For income tax purposes, the gain on the sale of stock is taxable and must be reported on Schedule D of Form 1040.

Q. Last month I was involved in a car accident. The damages were a few hundred dollars which I paid. Can this be considered a deductible loss?

A. Damages to your personal auto can be claimed as a casualty loss. The amount would be the difference in the fair market value before the accident and after the accident. The first hundred dollars would not be deductible. Any insurance proceeds recovered or recoverable must be taken into consideration. Damages you may be required to pay the other party are not deductible.

Your Horoscope

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Invest time and energies only in projects worthy of your endeavor. In a rush to accomplish, don't bypass small things, however.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)

Your ruling planets fairly favorable. Use poise and tactful persuasion in reaching for worthwhile and desirable objectives.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)

Stellar influences somewhat adverse. Watch for irritating situations and bridge them amicably and with unbiased opinion. Move briskly into productive areas.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

Think things out carefully before taking action, and you will save innumerable steps. Study, discuss, become familiar with all phases of your endeavor to insure best results.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

In a wide variety of desires, concentrate on the one which offers the greatest probability of enduring success. Many advantages in the offing.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

Supplement present program with new and vital additions. Progress indicated if methods are updated to meet current demands. Where needed, seek counsel from experts.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

You have the ability to accomplish a great deal, so don't settle for less — a tendency now. Stick to systems and procedures which have proven successful in the past.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)

Confine activities to areas with which you are familiar. This is no day for launching into uncharted seas. Emphasize soundness, good judgment.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)

Influences indicate action and a good measure of accomplishment, but not without effort. Improving an outmoded method could speed up your progress considerably.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)

If careful to avoid a tendency toward recklessness, you should have a constructive, satisfying day. Romance favored.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — We satisfied one of our most durable silly dreams when we sailed to Europe aboard the QE2: a midnight sailing, a dream born of Scott Fitzgerald and Melvyn Douglas and Claudette Colbert and Roz Russell and the Duke of Windsor, and any number of characters almost of fiction (the movie stars were) who whetted our snob appetite for some of the exquisitely impossible delicacies of life ... It was the movies first: Melvyn Douglas in evening clothes with Claudette or Roz in some impossible madcap predicament, in which a midnight sailing on a splendid ocean liner played its glamorous role. And there is the QE2, perhaps delayed by an early-season storm or a couple of bomb hoaxes that may keep Cunard carefully searching for the unknown...So the authentic midnight sailing is within an hour of target.

Philip Barry, in his glittering comedy, "The Philadelphia Story," had one line which somewhat summed up for us the old syndrome: "There is no prettier picture than the privileged class enjoying its privileges."

recently glamorous expanse of luxury apartments rising out of what once was a drab New Jersey topography, a very pretty two-sided mural indeed. The glamorous sailing parties, emphasis on champagne, considerably discouraged since some vicious nut started making disgraceful phone calls to Cunard, still take place under considerably less hysterical auspices; just as well: some of the parties took on a mood of desperation, as if it were the last great celebration ever.

Of course, the great passenger ships are part of the cause; indeed, most of it. No one much bothers to see you off at Kennedy Airport except an occasional worrywart parent certain of engine failure or hijacking. We've crossed the Atlantic dozens of times, and the same friends who insist on seeing us off on a ship wouldn't even consider a wave at Kennedy Airport. It's the sheer glamour of ocean travel, and it's totally true.

Until tighter restrictions were laid on by Cunard because of the cruel hoaxes, hundreds of people with no one they knew sailing simply appeared at the Cunard docks, donated to the Seamen's Fund and had themselves a glamorous afternoon.

In this era of starkly lowering — glowering! — denominators, of life and religion and sex and street-violence and creepy attire and shabby standards and switchblade mentalities and elements seeking the cruddier life styles, let's strike a blow for sheer luxury: and luxury is something that takes few lessons to accomplish.

"Certainly luxury takes money; but not so much as it once seemed. Luxury isn't just a pose, a waving of greenbacks, a showing-off of sudden prosperity. You get luxury when you turn on your color-TV set, get into your car, don a sports jacket, buy a fine pair of shoes, attend the theatre, catch a movie (especially at today's prices), or buy a steak; especially a steak.

There's a fantastic serenity in a transatlantic trip by sea. Granted, winter cruises are a bit more hectic, but that's the nature of the passengers who want to do something every moment, or they worry about the cost. Such as the lad who asked a girl to dance late on the last night of a Caribbean cruise and murmured, "Gosh, only another half hour of music!" The girl replied, "I'm dancing as fast as I can!"

None of this on today's luxury transatlantic voyages. Taking the trip totally subjectively, we find it our personal ideal way to start a long summer holiday.

In the first and possibly most important place, you are not faced with that modern trauma called "Jet Lag," arriving in a different time zone from the one your body and mind have tuned to for a year. It's a very real physical problem. Doctors have studied it and have all but thrown up their scalpels. There is no cure for it; likely, never will be. You take a plane from Kennedy at 10 p.m. and you arrive without sleep (don't tell us anyone can sleep properly on a plane! We've failed at it for more than 25 years!) somewhere close to noon, what with time racing ahead. The problems of landing, customs, immigration, luggage (yii!) take up what seems days; if your bags are lost — double-yii! Abroad the QE2, clocks are set back one hour a day (we liked it even better when they were reversed 30-minutes each 12 hours, but that's a small whim, it's all academic). And you do arrive rested. Luxuriously.

Glamorous talk-show hostesses wallow in their glitter off-TV? Wrong. CBS-TV's Sherry Henry's busy sewing on name tags. Daughter (also a Sherry; flip?) and son, Amil, are shuffling off to summer camp, and daughter Elizabeth is tripping along to the U.S. Senate, where she's the first distaff Senate page ever. She's all of 15. Amid all those Senatorial wolves? We know several from first hand.

THE LOCKHORNS

Ann Landers

Daughter confessor

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about a problem that I'm sure perplexes many parents, yet I don't remember ever seeing it in your column.

What should a parent do if his child (junior high age) tells him that a friend is planning to run away or is smoking pot? Our 14-year-old daughter often hears such confessions and in turn she tells me. I am not concerned about her becoming involved or being led astray, but I do wonder about my obligation to the parents of these children. Many of them are virtual strangers to me. I do not see them socially, or at PTA, or anywhere else.

I am not a meddler and I don't want to put my child in the position of being a stool pigeon. Yet it seems to me these kids are looking for help or they wouldn't be confiding in my daughter.

Should I talk to the teachers or the counselors or to the parents? I feel an obligation to do something but I don't know what to do or how far to go. Please consult your panel of experts and use your own experience to counsel me.

Know Too Much

Dear Too Much: A parent who violates his child's confidence destroys something precious. Don't do it. You could, however, suggest to your daughter that she encourage her friends to talk to you if they are unable to communicate with their own parents. You then could attempt to give them information and set them straight. It would be wonderful, of course, if you could obtain permission from these children to ask their parents to consider counseling. This is, of course, what is needed.

Confidential to Must Stinky Go?: Descending a skunk is an intricate and unpleasant surgical procedure. It is also expensive. Some veterinarians refuse to do it for any amount of money. Since most "pet" skunks were once wild there might be a danger of rabies, which is why some states have banned skunks as pets.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Teen Forum

Ah, young love!

REPLACED: (Q.) I love this boy. He used to love me, but two girls moved in next door. One is 15, one 14. He is 13, and I am 12.

Three weeks ago, the 14-year-old girl told me she liked him. Now he likes her.

He never talks to me any more, or even looks at me. Do you think he will ever like me again?

Lonely But Still Loving in Maine

(A.) You seem to have some determined competition. It's natural that your friend's attention has turned to the new girl. She may hold his attention or she may not. He may return to you or he may not. Don't count on it.

If he doesn't, don't waste your time grieving; at 12 you have many exciting friendships to look forward to.

BREAK BRIEF: (Q.) I had been liking and dating this girl for a year and a half. This summer we agreed to break up. I am going away to college soon, and she said she wanted to start dating some other boys.

Well, for a while we both went out with other people.

We both had fun, but not as much as we had had with each other. Last weekend we both happened to be at the same place and we realized that our love for each other was still strong. We have been together two nights of the past three.

Soon she will leave on a trip to Europe. What kind of line can I use to tell her good-bye and to say that I hope she won't find another boy and will come home to me?

Older and Wiser in Ohio
(A.) Words like this may encourage her to miss you: "I'm going to miss you more than I ever have and I have a feeling you are also going to be lonely."

But don't say this or anything else as a "line." Say nothing you do not really mean.

And don't ask her not to go with other boys while she's away. Give her full freedom to choose the boy she wants. Right now that boy appears to be you. But she would not have asked to break up if she had not had doubts. And you would not have written me if you had thought her doubts had all disappeared.
